

Work for the long term, not the short term by creating everyday work practices that foster balance and sustainability.

Long term goals

Accept the long-term nature of social change

Surround yourself with other people committed to the same goals who can support your ability to do your work effectively

Put in place workplace mechanisms to regularly debrief and reflect on your practice (and don't forget to use them)

Be kind to yourself and practice productive reflective practice

Know your signs of stress and when you need additional support

Try not to take work home

Allow yourself to switch off

Nurture yourself by regularly doing things you enjoy

Let your personal life feed your fire
